Titration Redox is Presented in Chemistry Lecture

Redox Titration Curves are Generally Similar to Neutralization Curves (acid-base). E changes abruptly at the TE, and thereafter the curve remains flat. This indicates a very slow change in E during titration. The inflection point of the curve can be used to determine the TE with the aid of an indicator. The magnitude of the change in E at the TE depends on the difference in E of the two redox systems. Mar 3th, 2024
